

New York Post, Independent, Is Out For Wilson

News-Times Special Service:
NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The New York Evening Post, one of the oldest and most influential independent newspapers in the country, declared Wednesday night in favor of President Wilson's reelection. "It bases its advocacy upon the ground that the president's reelection will be for the good of the country."

Having entered the campaign with a mind open to conviction and with high hopes of Mr. Hughes, the Post has found his expressions of policy a sore disappointment. "The editorial says: 'We agree with Prof. Bliss Perry in what he has lately written: 'I like fair play. Having known Woodrow Wilson for nearly 25 years as a high-minded gentleman of absolute integrity, of stubborn Scotch-Irish courage, and of passionate devotion to his country, I resent the vilification, misrepresentation, and malignant disparagement which characterizes the campaign against him.'"

"In this respect Mr. Hughes has been the president's best campaigner. Meanwhile Mr. Wilson has in his speeches shown by contrast that he has known how to be dignified while forcible."

NEW AUSTRIAN CABINET IS O. K'D BY EMPEROR

COLUMBIA PROTESTS NEW CANAL TREATY

Declares 99 Year Lease to U. S. in Nicaragua Violates Sovereignty in Two Islands.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Columbia has protested to the United States against the new canal route treaty with Nicaragua, it became known Wednesday night, on the ground that the granting of a 99-year lease to this government by Nicaragua of Great Corn and Little Corn islands is a denial of Colombian sovereignty in those islands. Columbia claims that the islands, though recently subject to Nicaraguan administration, are part of her territory under the Cedula of Nov. 20, 1893, issued by the king of Spain to demarcate the various Spanish provinces in the new world. The islands are not claimed to be of any especial value except strategically. They lie about 10 miles off the coast and have about 2,000 population.

WHAT TO DO WHEN YOUR FEET BURN AND ACHE

How many times have you come home in the evening with your feet aching and burning from standing or walking in hard, hot shoe leather; and what wouldn't you give to be relieved of that torture? Here is a simple way to obtain cool, comfortable, happy feet that will recommend itself because it is so simple and inexpensive. Get a package of Wa-Na-Ta from your druggist. It only costs a quarter. Then go home and bathe your feet in hot water in which you have dropped two or three of these tablets. A delicious sense of comfort and well-being will creep over you and all tired, aching feeting will vanish. Wa-Na-Ta added to your bath is a delightful cleanser and disinfectant, removing impurities and banishing body odors. If your druggist hasn't Wa-Na-Ta, send us 10 cents to cover expense of packing and mailing and we will send you a sample package prepaid to your address. You will thank us for the suggestion. L. C. # Wilson's Opinion of Labor Before He Entered Politics

New York City, June 16, 1909.

Hon. Woodrow Wilson,
President Princeton University,
Princeton, N. J.

Dear Sir:—

In the New York Times of June 14, which purports to give extracts of your baccalaureate address to the students of Princeton University, you are quoted as follows:—

"You know what the usual standard of the employee is in our day. It is to give as little as he may for his wages. Labor is standardized by the trade unions, and this is the standard to which it is made to conform. No one is suffered to do more than the average workman can do. In some trades and handicrafts no one is suffered to do more than the least skillful of his fellows can do within the hours allotted to a day's labor, and no one may work out of hours at all or volunteer anything beyond the minimum."

Now, your reported remarks strike me as being so extraordinary—so different from what I, as a member of organized labor, have found to be the facts—that I feel impelled to ask you if the foregoing paragraph is a correct report of what you said.

If you are correctly quoted, I should like to have you give me your authority for your statement that in labor unions "no one is suffered to do more than the average workman can do." Also give me the names of a few trades or handicrafts where "no one is suffered to do more than the least skillful of his fellows can do within the hours allotted to a day's labor, and no one may work out of hours at all or volunteer anything beyond the minimum."

As a matter of course, a president of a university of the reputed standing of Princeton would not make statements in his baccalaureate address unless he knows, or at least fully believes, that his statements are true. Therefore it ought not be a difficult matter for you to oblige me with the names of those labor unions whose laws, or even policies, bring about the results you specify.

Awaiting your reply with lively interest, I am,
Yours very truly,

Care Evening Telegram,
New York City.

Edgar R. Lavery.

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY
PRINCETON, N. J.

June 18th, 1909.

My dear Sir:—

Your letter of June 16th contains a very proper challenge. I quite agree that I ought not to make the statements I did make about the trades unions, unless I were able to cite cases in verification of my statements.

I, of course, had no individual trades unions in mind which I can name by number, but I had in mind several cases of buildings in New York City, for example, the brick layers working on which spent about one third of the working day sitting around, smoking their pipes and chatting, because they had laid the number of bricks to which they were limited for the day by the union to which they belonged.

I had in mind numerous experiences of my own in dealing with working men in Princeton, where I once found it impossible, for example, on a very cold evening to get a broken window pane mended at the house of an invalid friend, because the prescribed labor hours of the day were over and the glazier could not venture, without risking a strike, to do the work himself and could not order any of his workmen to do it. I had in mind scores of instances, in short, lying within my own experience and resting upon the testimony of friends in whose veracity I have every reason to have the greatest confidence.

I of course could not, in the case of more than one or two of these instances, give legal proof of my assertions, but the evidences I have are entirely sufficient to convince me of the general truth of the statement I made.

Very truly yours,

Woodrow Wilson

Mr. Edgar R. Lavery.

Labor's Opinion of Hughes After He Retired From Politics

"HE WAS A GREAT GOVERNOR"

"Now that Governor Hughes has retired from politics and ascended to a place on the highest judicial tribunal in the world, the fact can be acknowledged without hurting anybody's political corns, that he was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws in his messages to the legislature, even going so far as to place the demand for a labor law in one of his messages to an extra session of the legislature.

"Only 162 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 133 years. One third of these, exceeding in quality all of the others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes's term of three years and nine months.

"With such a record of approval and suggestion of progressive legislation in the interest of humanity to his credit, it is easy to believe that human rights will have a steadfast and sympathetic upholder in the new Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Labor's Opinion of Hughes is Based on WHAT HE HAS DONE

These Are Some of the Laws He Advocated and Signed While Governor of New York:

Wainwright Commission of Inquiry.

Automatic mutual agreement compensation law.

Automatic compulsory compensation.

(The first law of this kind enacted in the United States.)

Limiting the hours of labor for street car men.

Limiting the hours of labor for men in train service.

Limiting the hours of labor for signalmen and railroad telegraphers.

Placing young women from 18 to 21 years of age in the protected class.

ELEVEN CHILD LABOR LAWS extending over a period from 1907 to 1910.

(These laws secured the first definite standard for the protection of children in New York.)

Reconstructed the State Department of Labor.

Changed the penalties to make enforcement of labor laws easier.

Requiring semi-monthly payment of wages.

THIRTEEN LAWS relating to welfare, safety and sanitation in workshops.

Republican National Publicity Committee.
